

Tuesday, April 17, 2018

Workshop – Using the UN Treaty Bodies to Advance the Rights of Indigenous Peoples in English, Spanish, French and Russian

10:00 – 11:15, Conference Room 8, Conference Building, UN Headquarters, New York

Facilitator: Binota Moy Dhamai, Member, Board of the UN Voluntary Fund for Indigenous Peoples

The UN Voluntary Fund for Indigenous Peoples and Docip cordially invite you to the workshop, Using the UN Treaty Bodies to Advance the Rights of Indigenous Peoples. This training session is open to all delegates.

General introduction to the United Nations human rights treaty bodies

Facilitator: Morse Flores, Secretariat of the UN Voluntary Fund for Indigenous Peoples, Indigenous Peoples and Minorities section, OHCHR

- UN treaty bodies: Part of the International Human Rights System
- What are UN human rights treaty bodies?
- How do they work?

Questions and discussion

How can Indigenous peoples engage directly with treaty bodies?

Questions and discussion

How to follow up after the Constructive Dialogue

Questions and discussion

How to apply for funding by the UN Voluntary Fund on Indigenous Peoples

Questions and discussion

With the support of the European Union, the Sámediggi (Saami Parliament in Norway), the City of Geneva and the UN Voluntary Fund for Indigenous Peoples