Human Rights-Based Approaches to Violence and Abuse in Indigenous Communities

When: Wednesday 24 April 2019, 13:15 to 14:45.

Where: Permanent Mission of Norway to the UN, One Dag Hammarskjöld Plaza, 885 Second Avenue, 35th Floor, New York.

Organisers: The Norwegian National Human Rights Institution, the Sámi Parliament of Norway, the Indigenous Peoples Organisation Australia and the Permanent Missions of Norway and Australia.

Join us for a side-event on human rights-based approaches to violence and abuse in Indigenous communities during the Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues 18th Session. The event will begin with a presentation of the Norwegian National Human Rights Institution's recent report on the issue in a Sámi context, followed by a panel discussion with leading Indigenous rights advocates. The event will be held in English and lunch will be served.

Speakers:

- Anne Karin Olli, State Secretary to the Norwegian Minister of Local Government and Modernisation
- Adele Matheson Mestad, Director of the Norwegian National Human Rights Institution
- Aili Keskitalo, President of the Sámi Parliament of Norway
- Victoria Tauli-Corpuz, UN Special Rapporteur on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples
- Dr. Hannah McGlade, Senior Indigenous Research Fellow at Curtin University, Australia
- Eirik Larsen, Political Advisor at the Sámi Parliament of Norway
- Moderator: Peter Dawson, Project Coordinator at the Norwegian National Human Rights Institution
